Youth Convicted In Death
of Cash Child Is Given Respite

EXECUTION WAS SCHEDULED TODAY

Attorney to Present Case
To United States Supreme Court

(By Associated Press)
RAIFORD, Fla., Feb. 20.—Franklin Pierce McCall, his head shaved
for the electric chair, today was granted a stay of execution until next Friday to permit an appeal
to the United States Supreme Court
of his conviction in the death of 5-year-old James Bailey Cash, Jr.,
who was kidnapped and killed last May.

Slated to Die Today
McCall was to have died at the state prison farm here today. Supt.
L. F. Chapman of the prison said
he ordered postponement under
authority given by the death warrant to hold executions any day of the week set by the governor. He said he acted after a telephone conversation with Gov. Fred P.
Cone.

The stay was obtained after relative bade the fearful goodbyes yesterday to the youth who confessed
kidnaping the Cash child at Princeton, Fla., last May 28 and collecting $10,000 ransom after his victim
was dead.

C. A. Avriett of Jasper, McCall's
attorney, said he would go to Washington immediately to present
the case to the United States Supreme Court.

Members of McCall's family, including his wife and his mother,
were at the family home at Jasper.

Another to Meet Death
Prison officials carried out plans
to execute Paul Fried Bunge of Tampa at 10 a. m. Bunge was convicted for the murder of his wife
and two children.

The governor yesterday stayed
the death of Clyde Hysler, 22, of Jacksonville, for 30 days because charges had not been finally settled
against the convicted murderer's
two alleged accomplices. Hysler was convicted as the instigator of a snatch slaying.

TWO LEETONIAN HURT IN CRASH

Youths In Hospital After Motorcycle Skids Into
Side of Car

Two Leetonian youths suffered
compound fractures of the left leg
when their motorcycle skidded on a curve on Route 14, two miles east of Salem, at 2:45 p. m. Sunday and crashed into an automobile coming
from the opposite direction.

The victims, William Johnston,
18, of R. D. 3, Leetonia, and Earl Patterson, 18, of R. D. 1, Leetonia,
were removed to Salem City hospital where their conditions today
were reported as fair.

Cut and Bruised

Both men suffered cuts and
bruises when thrown to the pavement. Patterson, who was driving
the motorcycle, received an injury
to his right knee cap and several
broken fingers on his left hand.

Johnston was riding behind Patterson on the cycle when the vehicle skidded and hit the rear left fender of a machine driven by J. O.
Ladd, 59, of Pittsburgh, who was enroute to Alliance to visit a relative.

Caesar Clott, 52, of 172 Prospect
st. was injured in one of several traffic accidents in the city over the weekend. According to police,
he walked into the side of a passing
car at the intersection of S. Ellis and Pershing st. at 1:45

at 1:45 p. m. Sunday, suffering cuts and bruises to his face and right leg.

He was released from City hospital this morning and fined $5 and costs in the mayor's court on an intoxication charge.

Fined $100 and Costs

Rudolph Fronius of Liberty st.
was fined $100 and costs by Mayor George Harroff on a charge of driving while intoxicated, preferred
by J. V. Durnham of 491 Sharp
ave., whose parked car on W. State
st. was hit by Fronius' car at 4:25
p. m. Saturday, according to police reports.

Car driven by Frank Heim of Columbiana and Emil Rader of Niles were involved in a collision
at the intersection of N. Ellsworth ave. and Tenth st. at 1 a. m. Sunday. No one was injured.

Margaret Gonzales of Lisbon told police her parked automobile was shoved into a light pole on Second
st. when hit by a machine operated
by Frank Vickers of R. D. 2, Salem,
at 4:05 p. m. Saturday.

Marvin Whitman of 1293 Maple
st. informed police at 11:15 p. m.
Saturday that a machine, bearing Pennsylvania license plates, failed
to stop after hitting his car at the intersection of W. State st. and the Benton road.

Compensation Case Is Heard In Lisbon

LISBON, Feb. 20.—A state industrial commission hearing opened
here this morning in the case of Mrs. Anna Drakulich of Salem,
who is appealing from a ruling by
the state which denied her participation in industrial compensation
in the death of her husband, Nicholas.

She claims he was injured while
at work at the National Sanitary plant in Salem, June 9, 1932. He died Aug. 8, 1933, of cancer of the liver, which, she says, resulted from the injury.

Four Alliance Youths In

Weekend

FORMER CONVICT
FACING CHARGES

Removes Groceries From Car and Falls Into
Police Trap

Police, confronted with the problem of continued thefts from automobiles here lately, rounded up six suspects Saturday night, following
nights of watchful waiting.

Former Convict Nabbed

Among those held are four Alliance youths and a former Pennsylvania convict. One of the Alliance men is a Mansfield reformatory parolee.

They are:

George Schell, 22, of 732 1/2 Mechanics st., Alliance; Arthur Tangi,
21, of 738 E. Columbia st., Alliance;
James Huff, 16, 124 1/2 E. Sennett
st., Alliance; Russell Bagley, 16, of 227 Norman ave., Alliance; George Zalick, 29, who has been living
north of Salem, and James Barris, 40, of Lansing, Mich.

All are charged with petty larceny, Chief Ralph Stoffer said.

Zalick fell into a "trap" set by police when he looted a parked car
of groceries Saturday night.

On Chief Stoffer's instructions,
Patrolman Paul Ormsby placed
groceries in an automobile and parked the car in front of the Presbyterian church on Second st.
The patrolman then hid between
two houses nearby.

Fries Car Door First

At 7:40 p. m. Ormsby saw a man
walk down the street, stop and try
the door handle of the officer's car. He then walked on down the street a short distance, stopped,
looked around, and then went back to the car. He opened the door and took the groceries. As the thief walked away, Ormsby ran up and
placed him under arrest.

Zalick then told the officer that his own car was parked on S. Ellis
north ave., just below State st.,
where his wife and 12-year-old child were waiting. Police took him to jail.

Air Bombing For Quick Victory Heralded For Next War

Nazis Build Plane Fleets; British and French Ready To Answer In Kind

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Behind
the hurried buying of American warplanes by Great Britain and France lies the apparent conviction
of their general staffs that mass
bombing raids for quick victory will characterize the start of the "next war."

Germany is concentrating its production on two types of planes,
swift bombers and fast pursuits.
The bombers are meant for forays
on centers vital to an enemy's conduct of the war—railroads, highways and factories. The pursuits are
to help protect the bombers and
shoot down enemy aircraft.

Quick and Effective

A theory of warfare which has grown up in Europe since the World war days is that airplanes, as a
terrorizing and destructive force,
can bring victory before the vast machinery of land warfare can get
in motion, perhaps in a space of days.

Great Britain and France reason
logically that that kind of war can
be combatted only with its own weapons.

Retaliation is the only possible
tactical reply of an opposing fleet
of bombing planes. Hence the French purchases of American pursuits and bombers and British purchases of bombers supplemented
with training planes.

Not for publication at home,
where the public morale must be guarded, is the general belief in

Former Salem Man On Strenuous 'Bike' Trip—10,000 Miles

Ten thousand miles is a lot of mileage, especially when you travel
that far on a bicycle.

But that is just what James Fogg,
formerly of Salem and now residing
at San Francisco, Calif., did recently.

Fogg, former Hollywood golf
caddy, victim of infantile paralysis
as a child, took up bicycling for exercise. The 10,000 mile "bike" ride
he completed took him to Portland,
Me., and back.

In a letter to relatives here, he said he believes he is ready to go to work now.

Council will hold a committee
meeting at city hall tonight to dis-

will come up for passage at the regular session Tuesday night.

The councilmen have before them
requests for two ordinances, one
from the Kirby Lines, Inc., asking
for a 10-year franchise to operate
a bus line here and another from
the Ohio Edison Co., seeking a 25-
year franchise to replace the present one which expires next year.

The Ohio Edison has reduced its residential rates here slightly and
offers the city a similar reduction in the new franchise agreement.

A representative of the Works

to appear before council tomorrow
night, together with a member of the board of education and Joseph
M. Kelly, Memorial building manager, to offer the city a WPA

Two Alliances Before Eyes Of World In Era Of Crises

Rome-Berlin Axis and Anti-Comintern Pact Are Explained by Associated Press Writer

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—These days of Vesuvian crises which keep erupting, first in the far east and then in Europe, two alliances are constantly in the world's eye—the Rome-Berlin axis and the anti-Comintern pact.

"And just what," asks a reader, "are the Rome-Berlin axis and the anti-Comintern pact?"

So let's take a look at these characterizations.

The Rome-Berlin axis is merely
a broad term applied to the political relationship between Italy and Germany. Specifically it doesn't mean anything more than that the two countries are friends. Within this broad designation, however,
are definite commitments of one
sort or another some of which presumably are secret.

Outcome of Ethiopia

The axis is an outcome of Mussolini's Ethiopian conquest. When the League of Nations slammed sanctions on it in an effort to halt
his invasion, Hitler declined to participate and gave moral support to his ally-to-be.

After that the activities of the axis grew rapidly. In October of 1936 the two totalitarian chieftains
signed an accord under which they agreed to cooperate politically and economically in the Danubian
basin, by which was meant Austria, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Rumania
and Bulgaria. Germany was given special economic privileges in Ethiopia. On another occasion Hitler agreed Germany would respect Austrian territorial integrity if Austria acknowledged herself as a German state.

As time progressed Hitler and Mussolini seemed to work in closer cooperation. They supported Insurgent Leader Franco in the Spanish war and stood side by side in the Munich conference.

WHY A DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT?

A bill designed to create a second Columbiana county common pleas court to be known as the court of domestic relations has been introduced in the Ohio house of representatives by Rep. John P. Stephenson of East Liverpool and in the Ohio senate by Sen. Roy N. Merryman of Steubenville.

Carrying the indorsement of the Columbiana County Bar association, it is the outgrowth of years of agitation to provide a measure of relief for the county's lone common pleas judge whose duties are claimed to be too manifold and arduous for the physical capabilities of any one man.

It is our opinion after careful study that the legislation in its present form will not only fail to achieve its goal but will saddle the taxpayer with an additional burden without yielding any appreciable benefits.

If a second common pleas court is created, we feel it should be established on a footing equal to the one already in existence and be opposed to the present plan of "earmarking" its duties to include all cases under the juvenile court act, all bastardy cases over which the juvenile court now has jurisdiction and all divorce and alimony cases bearing the common label of domestic relations.

The bill presumably was drafted under the erroneous impression that juvenile court work cannot now legally be shared by a common pleas judge or judges. The Ohio general code specifically provides that if the volume of cases pending in the juvenile court necessitates it, the presiding judge of the common pleas court shall assign a common pleas judge of the county to act in the juvenile judge's place or in conjunction with him if he, the juvenile judge, so requests.

In Columbiana county, juvenile cases are handled by the probate court, principally because probate work in this county ordinarily is not particularly burdensome. It is largely a recording and accounting office—a place to file papers and have them audited—work that can be discharged acceptably by the deputy, except in contested cases, which are rare.

A large share of the probate judge's work in this county arises from juvenile cases whose disposition, if they become a burden on the court, can be facilitated either by the appointment of an additional probate officer, most of whose work does not require an attorney, or by assignment to common pleas jurisdiction.

The creation of a court of domestic relations will do little or nothing to relieve the docket of civil cases and the routine of jury trials that now are borne by Judge Lones.

Although under the bill work can be assigned from No. 1 courtroom to the proposed new court, there is no provision that it effectively will be, principally because the domestic relations judge can make of his work practically what he cares to and will not be bound legally to accept such assignments.

The county needs a more equitable distribution of the duties of the common pleas court and that can be achieved not by defining a new court's duties but by endowing it with a range of jurisdiction so wide as to make workable the real objective—an honest sharing of all the work.

The bar has taken the initiative in the move but the proposal concerns more than attorneys who practice before the bench. Its provisions should be more generously passed around, more adequately publicized. We are not facing an emergency. This is something that demands full deliberation and the unerring guidance of experience.

LAST OF THE CRUSADERS

The pennant of one of the last of the crusaders is hauled down as death overtakes Dr. Clarence True Wilson, chairman of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, and the world has lost a fighter.

Dr. Wilson might not like to be called a "crusader" because the term was appropriated by his enemies in the last big fight over prohibition but nevertheless he was a crusader in the fullest sense of a word which has many romantic connotations.

He saw his warfare against what he considered the embattlements of evil won and lost as America adopted and then repudiated national prohibition, but he battled on, fighting not only his chosen enemy in the social world but also a physical ailment which twice before threatened to end his career.

There were many who scoffed at him as they have scoffed at every crusader, but he left an imprint on the social and moral consciousness of America and he goes to the crusader's reward with the proud record of a fight well and honorably fought.

MIRACLES ON PARADE

The mind is unable to grasp all the miracles which science is performing as a part of its daily task but there is a chance to see them in the great expositions which have become almost annual affairs.

This year there are two of them—the Golden Gate Exposition which opened Saturday and the New York World's Fair which will open in a few weeks.

Here are assembled all the amazing things which the magicians of science and industry have created. From all lands come new creations each demonstrating in startling fashion man's progress.

The fairs tell a connected story of better living. Things which were unbelievable at the old Chicago, San Francisco and St. Louis world's fairs are commonplace adjuncts of everyday life today. The new miracles of the New York and San Francisco expositions this year will be routine aids to better living tomorrow and science will bring forth new discoveries to intrigue the imagination.

The international aspect of the fair is a valuable contribution to understanding and cooperation between nations. It shows how fast the world is moving and it proves, if visitors still stop in their round of sightseeing for a little reflection, that if it is to long survive it must move in harmony.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, February 21

AN EXTREMELY active and eventful day is presaged by the major aspects of the predominant planetary forces. There may be very drastic efforts in putting over important projects, which are likely to succeed best through strategy and undercover agreements, although these may also carry a menace of fraud, duplicity or treachery. Proper vigilance, precaution and personal integrity should bring surprising climaxes, with unforeseen good fortune. Conservatism in handling funds is also recommended, both in business and in private expenditures.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a surprising stroke of good fortune, if they will manage their affairs with acumen, vigilance and rigid integrity. A portentous situation might arise in connection with secret, illicit or tricky conditions. Beware of intrigue and suspicious propositions. Shun lavish expenditures in both business and private affairs. Contacts with strangers may prove profitable, but in all use caution.

A child born on this day may be versatile, energetic and probably aggressive. It may possess initiative to attain much success and good fortune, although it may be easily imposed upon or cheated.

ECONOMIC DETERRENENTS

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 20.—Speakers at the third annual farm institute Saturday branded as deterrents to economic recovery what they termed inflexibility of industrial prices and wages as compared with the wide range of agricultural prices.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation in a prepared address asserted that the free flow of goods and services had been seriously curtailed by inflexible prices and wages which are maintained by purely artificial factors.

"The objective we should all strive for is an economic system," he said, "under which commodity prices, the wages of labor, prices for manufactured goods and farm prices are kept in such relation to one another as to permit the widest possible exchange of goods and services by all."

O. B. Jessen, chief of the division of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota, in a prepared address said the depression served to focus attention more directly than ever before on the difference in flexibility of agricultural and industrial prices.

"The contrast in behavior of agriculture and industry," he observed, "now stands out very clearly. When a period of depression comes along it is impossible to move the same volume of goods and maintain prices. The alternatives are either to reduce output or else to accept lower prices. By and large, industry does the former; agriculture the latter."

"The differences in flexibility of prices arise from inherent differences between farming and industry and not from differences between farmers and industrialists. The farmer and the manufacturer each does what appears best for himself or his concern."

O'Neal challenged labor, the other group participating in the institute's discussions along with agriculture and industry, to adopt a wage scale that would permit more people to buy its products.

Whooping Cough Frequently Mistaken In Cases Of Adults

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We are in the midst of an epidemic of whooping cough of wide-spread distribution on the North American continent. I heard of many cases in New York and when I visited the Pacific coast there it was also.

There are a great many cases among adults. Nothing is strange about that because in all epidemics of children's diseases adults are likely to be sporadically affected, but what is strange is that so many cases of whooping cough in adults go on unrecognized. The cases are called la grippe or bronchitis and drag along until somebody hears the patient give a whoop and that reveals the diagnosis.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The lack of recognition comes up very naturally. The doctor sees the patient only once perhaps and finds a cough and a temperature. It isn't natural to think of whooping cough in a strapping husky of 25. And the "cold" drags along. Nobody thinks to tell the doctor about the vomiting or the whooping, and the condition may become rather serious, to say nothing of the spread of the disease from these wandering, unrecognized carriers.

Case of Interne

To show how real this situation may be, I know of an interne in a hospital, a grown man of 30, who came down with a cough. He was surrounded by doctors and nurses, but nobody realized what was the matter with him until he visited a friend's house where he fell into a paroxysm of coughing, strangled, gagged and threw up. Then the old grandmother of the household exclaimed, "Heaven bless us! The lad's got whooping cough!"

I know of another case in a young lady of 18 whose mother insisted she had whooping cough but two doctors stoutly maintained she did not. A blood count showed the doctors were wrong and the mother right.

The disease may run its course without the typical whoop ever being heard. So a cough not accompanied by fever (of any high degree) or signs recognizable by the stethoscope on the chest, which steadily increases in severity for two weeks in spite of treatment, and which occurs chiefly at night, is always suspicious. A blood count is a great help in diagnosis up to the period of convalescence.

Treating Adult

In treatment for the adult case, the cough should be stringently controlled by sedatives. Nutrition must be maintained as the vomiting may cause weakness and considerable loss of weight. The vomiting is not accompanied by nausea; it is simply a reflex gagging due to the rosy mucus in the throat, and after every vomiting more food should be forced. The best drug is still probably antipyrine, which in adults assumes the role of a specific. But the most important thing is to prevent the adult whooping cough patient from spreading the disease to others.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fan Bacteriologist: "What causes a gnawing or growling sensation in the stomach? It becomes embarrassing. I eat sufficiently and the elimination is good. Could it be nerve reaction?"

Answer: The sensation you describe corresponds very closely with acid dyspepsia. If it is that, it is easily relieved by doses of alkali, such as sodium bicarbonate, half teaspoonful with a glass of water.

W. H. S.: "Is the X-ray technique successful in the dislodgment of adhesions of one or two years standing? Can X-ray photographs be used to measure the extent and progress of adhesions?"

Answer: The X-ray does not remove adhesions nor affect their removal in any way. Adhesions in the abdomen can often be detected by a diagnostic X-ray.

Mother's Standby in Treating CHILDREN'S COLDS

FOR RELIEVING discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Its poultice-vapor action relieves local congestion and helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

FOR COUGHING and irritated throat due to colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, bathes the throat with comforting medication. Also massage on throat and chest.

FOR HEAD-COLD "sniffles" and misery, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages.

CHAPTER XVIII

Henry Yates was properly shocked.

"Mrs. Howells," he protested, "at my age and in my position! Come, come! The young lady is agreeable and she likes to exchange a friendly word or two now and then. But with me—I ask you, Mrs. Howells."

"Ah well," the lady retorted, "Nancy says she isn't too sure about you. His lordship was down here this morning talking to her, so of course she has been all in a dither ever since."

"Well," Mr. Yates remarked, as he retreated with the two glasses upon a tray, "I don't think that I will ever set anyone in a dither—not even Miss Kampf. The first of your commissions, Miss Kampf," he announced as he re-entered the parlor.

"Rosa," she corrected him.

"Rosa, then."

"And behold," she added, extending her hand, "your greeting, please."

He kissed her hand awkwardly.

"Why do you try to make me learn these foreign tricks?" he complained. "I'm much too old."

"I know you learn them," she said, "because you are too shy to greet a friend in friendly fashion."

Now, if I were in Amsterdam or Paris and I took a drink with a gentleman and we were intimate like this he would even venture a little kiss here and there," she showed him, touching two rather becoming smiles.

Mr. Yates coughed, "there were days when I was young, perhaps."

She made a grimace.

"Englishmen are always young," she insisted. "That is what I like about them. They are always young enough to be foolish. However, we shall see. Day by day we shall get to know one another better—Yes? You will have more courage? Please agree with me at once."

"I trust so."

Henry Yates, with his whiskey and soda and the girl with her large glass of sherry, sat close to the small rosewood table and quite close to one another. The young lady was dark inclined to be robust, with severe features and heavy eyebrows. She used cosmetics freely and her semi-nautical costume did not err on the side of modesty. Her smile and manner, however, were not altogether without allure. Matresser probably would have found it hard to believe that this was the same woman whose face he had seen peering over the muslin blind not so many hours before.

"Tell me about the inquest, my Henry," she invited.

"I know no more than you do," he assured her. "His lordship came into my room for a minute or two on his return and he simply looked through a few letters I had laid out for him and signed some cheques."

"But at luncheon time surely he mentioned it?"

"I do not lunch with the family," he told her. "I have only seen his lordship for a few minutes since. He goes always to his apartment for an hour after lunch and since then he has been playing squash with Lady Ann."

"You disappointing man," she sighed.

"I'm sorry," he regretted. "Why do you care about the inquest?"

"It is the Count," she replied.

"You would not believe it. He looks so huge and stolid, but he has every woman's weakness. He has every curiosity in him—and about trifles, too—than any man I ever knew."

"It is unfortunate," Henry Yates declared.

"And the other matter?" she asked, her hand for a moment falling upon his. "Have you made up your mind?"

"It takes some thinking about," he confessed. "Let me ask you a question, Rosa."

"It is good that," she said, sidling a little closer to him. "Now I shall answer it graciously."

"Supposing your employer were to take it into his head to come on shore—he could be here within five minutes of leaving the boat—what would be his—er—reaction when he found us sitting here together?"

"You are like every one of the others I have ever had," she laughed. "You are afraid of that giant of mine, although he means less than nothing to me. Well, I do not name you. To look at he is fearful, but now I will show you something, Henry, my dear. I am not a fool. Look out of that window. Look past the stumpy little white house, past that sandy ridge right down the creek out to the sea. What do you see there?"

"A dinghy with a single sail up," was the prompt reply.

"Quite right. And in that dinghy is one man and that one man is my employer. That is how he loves to pass the time. If he were to suddenly be suspicious of me at this moment it would take him something like an hour and a half to get back. I could lie here in your arms, my little brown bear, if you only happened by chance to care about that sort of thing as I do! We would watch that little sail and we would know all the time that we were as safe as though we were in another world. Are you answered?"

"In one way," Yates acknowledged, "but I, too, am sometimes curious and I ask myself what liberties he permits."

"None at all," she sighed. "That is another of his feminine failings. He is a viciously, dangerously jealous man. Now, let us come to the point. Let us speak of that other matter. You should know your master by this time. Is he working at great boat to tell others about the wonderful countries he has visited? No. He plays games. That is like the English. My employer plays no game for amusement only. He would write the book. We believe that you have the information he needs. To you it is useless. To us it is worth a great deal, my dear."

"A book in the Dutch language!" Yates ejaculated.

"How little you know of such af-airs," she scoffed. "The book would be written in English, Dutch, French and German and published at the same time. Mr. van Westreene for all his faults is a very honest man. He would not wish to deceive you. He would gain a great deal of money if he could make that book as comprehensive as he wishes. He wishes you to have a share of that profit. It is not a small sum he would give if you are able to afford him the information he desires. Do not speak too hastily. I will not deceive you. It is I who have taken all the trouble in this matter. I, too, should expect part of the profit."

Henry Yates took off his spectacles and polished them. He was facing the window and he blinked for a moment in the strong light. The dinghy was almost out of sight now and her sail might have been the white wing of a seagull.

"This is to be purely a mercenary bargain, then," he remarked.

She looked at him for a moment with an inviting twist of her beamed lips, then she laughed and threw her arms around his neck.

"So long as the dinghy is on the water," she whispered pulling his ear, "we might flirt just as much as you like. First though, we make the agreement. I draw a map—yes? I tell you what we want!"

He drew a little away, finished his whiskey and soda and smoothed his rumpled hair.

"Another drink, Rosa?" he suggested.

"Go and fetch it from the bar," she begged. "I now go to my room. Soon I will show you the map. Then we talk business."

She walked to the door with her arm resting upon his shoulder and ran up the stairs with a lightness which surprised him. Henry Yates accepted a little more mild badinage from Nancy's mother, then returned to the sitting-room with the drinks. It was fully ten minutes before Miss Rose Kampf descended. She was carrying an oilskin bound map or chart under her arm. She brought it to the table, opened it and slowly spread it out. All the time she was watching him. One corner she secured with a geranium pot, another with the inkstand, the other two with solid ashtrays.

"This is the country concerning which Mijneer van Westreene feels that he is yet far too ignorant. Yet it must find a place in the record of his travels. The one hundred and twenty-seven questions of which he spoke are all connected with that territory there."

"We can answer them all," Henry Yates announced with a slight touch of grandiloquence.

"You have been there lately then?" she asked eagerly.

"Lately? It is not necessary that it should be lately. It is a country, which no one ever forgets."

"What were you doing there?" she went on. "You and that English master of yours, who looks as though the land upon which he stood and the air he breathed were his by divine right."

"I may tell you that," he replied, "when the terms of our bargain are fixed, when it is settled whether or no I answer those hundred and twenty-seven questions."

"They shall be fixed here, now—at this moment," she declared. "I know how much money Mr. van Westreene has. I know how much he is prepared to spend on this book business. It is an amount which may bring ruin upon him but he is obstinate. His book shall be perfect or it will never be written. The story of that blue patch upon the map must be in it. There will be two thousand five hundred pounds for you, my little man, five hundred pounds of which you will give back to me, and if there is anything else you want," she added, passing her fingers down his cheek, "it is yours—any time when the dinghy is the other side of the bar."

His cheeks burned where her fingers had touched them.

"One thing," he begged, "this is necessary. I will not start our negotiations by deceiving you."

"Better not," she warned him.

"I shall answer those hundred and twenty-seven questions but when they are answered, everything worth knowing about that strip of country will be there—but there will be the experiences of others as well as our own. To tell you the truth, it is some time since my master and I crossed the Wallapooly River."

She was standing by his side, the chart still spread out before them. She gripped him by the shoulders.

PRR ENDS 1938 WITH SURPLUS

Operating Figures Are Revealed In 92nd Annual Report

Notwithstanding difficulties faced during one of the most critical periods in American railroad history, the 92nd annual report of the Pennsylvania railroad, made public today, shows that the company closed 1938 with a surplus, after meeting all obligations, of over $3,000,000.

Due to continuance throughout the year of the sharp business recession which started in 1937, the operating revenues of $360,384,241 decreased $85,549,267, or 21 per cent. Measures to secure the utmost efficiency and economy in every branch of the service, however, effected a reduction in operating expenses of 24 per cent, with the result that the decrease in net revenue from railway operations was only $14,635,218, or less than 12½ per cent as compared with the previous year.

The operating ratio for 1938, i. e., the percentage of operating revenues required to pay operating expenses, was 71.33 per cent as compared with 74.13 per cent in 1937, and, with but two exceptions, was the lowest in the last 29 years.

Freight revenues, totaling $259,257,751, reflected in their smaller volume the general inactivity of business. The shrinkage in tonnage hauled was offset in only relatively slight degree by the limited increases in freight rates permitted by the Interstate Commerce commission, and the decrease in freight revenues from the preceding year was 24 per cent.

The passenger revenues of $65,796,195 showed a relatively much smaller decrease of only a little over 8 per cent. Effective July 25, basic coach fares were increased from 2 cents a mile to 2½ cents a mile, by authority of the Interstate Commerce commission, for an experimental period of 18 months.

Mail, express and all other items of operating revenue showed decreases for the year.

After payment of taxes and fixed charges, there remained a net income from the year's operations of $11,046,100, out of which $8,035,319 was appropriated for sinking and other reserve funds, etc., and the surplus of $3,010,781 was credited to profit and loss.

A dividend of 1 per cent, or 50 cents a share on the capital stock, amounting to $6,583,877, was paid December 20, 1938, and was charged to profit and loss, continuing unbroken the record of a cash return to stockholders for 91 consecutive years, beginning with 1848.

The balance sheet reveals a net increase in investment in road and equipment of $7,715,150. There was no change in the amount of capital stock outstanding. There was a net decrease in funded debt of $6,482,910.

Former Ohio Governors

Varied Interests Attract Former Buckeye State Executives

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of stories on what former Ohio governors are doing.)

(By Associated Press)

MARIETTA, Feb. 20.—Behind a desk blanketed with mass of discarded papers, letters and reports reclines George White, who's just too busy visiting to get caught up with business.

This two-term former governor and one-time chairman of the national Democratic committee is Marietta's No. 1 citizen and as such he's known familiarly as "Uncle George."

Ready to "Chin"

The condition of his desk is accounted for by his willingness to "chin" with everybody and anybody on everything from politics on down to the weather.

Since George White left the Ohio governor's office in 1935, he has continued to dabble in politics and attend to his widely scattered oil interests. He's one of the most prominent independent oil producers in the state.

A year ago he made his third unsuccessful attempt to seek the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator. He took the defeat as just "one of those things" and now some influential Democrats are urging him to lead an intra-state party reorganization.

White would rather talk about politics than express his views on the subject, but he did observe that "growing out of the reverses the national organization experienced last November is a very great need of re-forming of party organization."

Good Organizer

He has been regarded as an excellent organizer and one of his chief characteristics is to respect the other fellow's views regardless of how variant they are from his own. While governor that policy helped him to get along with a legislature which was controlled by Republicans.

Although the life of a governor is a rigorous one, White was one of those individuals who gave no outward sign that he was affected by the pressure of public life. He finds private life relaxing but like an old fire hose he likes to be in the thick of action.

White was 66 last Aug. 21 and he boasts of being able to "chop a mean cord of wood for the family fireplace." He regrets, however, that he has not yet been able to bring his golf game below the century mark.

"How's your bridge game governor?"

"Humph!" hurrumphed White, a twinkle escaping from beneath those expansive-looking horn-rimmed spectacles of his. "I don't play bridge, although heavens knows Mrs. White has tried hard enough to get me to learn it. Besides, what's a grand slam compared to the thrill of filling an inside straight . . . hurrumph!"

To many, White is somewhat of a fatalist. He refuses to consider a mole hill a mountain and believes a lot in just plain luck. More men succeeded by getting "breaks" than by arduous plugging, he asserts. He contends it was only luck which brought him back from the Klondike with a rich gold "strike."

In addition to his oil interests, White's time nowadays also is occupied by his position as director of the Peoples Banking and Trust company of Marietta and as trustee of Marietta college.

His chief interest and favorite "topic," however, is Charles Zane White, his son of less than a year.

Queen of Mardi Gras

Many ailments come from the eyes. You don't feel just right. You have a pain across your forehead—you become dizzy—reading tires you. These are the symptoms of weak eyes. Glasses would eliminate all that discomfort.

Glasses "cure" nothing but they often remove the cause of many physical ailments and prevent eyes from going wrong by making them optically correct. Permanently impaired vision often results from neglecting temporary eye defects.

Miss King Is First Bride In New Presbyterian Church

Miss Doris King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. King of Tenth st., became the bride of Paul J. Smith, son of Mrs. Cora Smith of S. Lincoln ave., at 12:30 p. m. Saturday in the first wedding in the new Presbyterian church.

Rev. R. D. Walter, pastor, heard the exchange of vows. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Charlotte King, as maid of honor, and Miss Kathryn Courtney and Mrs. Dale Wilson as bridesmaids. Her sister, Little Carol Ann King, was flower girl.

Dale Wilson served Mr. Smith as best man. Ushers were Diane Dilworth and Frederick Roth.

Miss King, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin with long train, fashioned with short draped sleeves, a long full veil of tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and orange blossoms sent from Florida as a gift by Mrs. Jessie Burcaw. The only ornament she wore was an heirloom brooch, a cameo set in yellow gold in a ring of seed pearls, which was worn by a bride 82 years ago.

Her sister wore a peacock blue taffeta frock trimmed with fuchsia velvet bows, made with long full hoop skirt. Her doll hat of velvet flowers matched the dress. She carried a bouquet of yellow jonquils and yellow roses.

The bridesmaids' gowns, fashioned similarly to that of the maid of honor, were of rose taffeta with fuchsia velvet bows, and they wore matching doll hats. Their bouquets were yellow daisies.

The flower girl wore a floorlength hoop-skirt frock of white taffeta, with fuchsia velvet bows, and a white velvet flower in her hair. She carried pansies, sweetpeas and yellow roses.

Locketts worn by the attendants were gifts of the bride.

Mrs. King, mother of the bride, wore a jacket frock of sheer black alpaca crepe. Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom, wore rose alpaca crepe with matching accessories. Their corsages were yellow orchids and yellow roses.

A short organ recital preceded the ceremony, played by Miss Anna Cook. The numbers included: "O, Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star" (Wagner); organ chimes, "Love's Old Sweet Song" (Molloy); "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" (Saint-Saens); organ chimes, "I Love You Truly" (Bond); and "Liebestraume" (Liszt).

The ceremony was followed by a breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, where 21 guests were entertained. The breakfast was served by Miss Ruth Wilson of Columbiana and Helen Murphy, Salem, friends of the bride.

The table was attractive with Madeira cover, a large wedding cake topped by miniature bride and groom, and white candles.

A number of friends and relatives attended a reception at the King home during the afternoon. Guests were from Newark, Canton, Youngstown, Coraopolis, Pa., and Washingtonville.

The bride wore a navy blue alpaca crepe frock with blue accessories and grey broadtail coat when she and Mr. Smith left for a short wedding trip to Cleveland.

On their return they will be at home to friends in their apartment, 253 South Lincoln ave., after Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are graduates of Salem High school, classes of 1934 and 1933, respectively. She is employed by the Deming Co., and he is associated with the Ohio Edison Co.

Quilted Street Jackets

Turquoise jacket, left, is lined, even to the insides of the pockets, with black jersey, matching the dress.

If you're proud of your figure—and why not?—this jacket is your number. Like many suit coats, it molds the waist and gives a rounded hip-line.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

FASHION'S doing a nice bit of frame-work for spring. We've had quilted housecoats and bed jackets (grand because they don't wrinkle behind your back), quilted evening wraps and formal gowns. Now come street ensembles with quilted jersey jackets, for southern or northern chic.

Done in contrasting exterior shades to the dresses worn underneath, the jackets are lined in the same color as the frocks. There's practically no bulk or weight to them, but a nicety of warmth. And, of course, either the loose model, left, or the fitted, right, will go uncomplainingly over several of your dresses, your slacks, and perhaps one or two of your evening dresses.

Theatre Attractions

Highly recommended as good entertainment for young and old theatergoers is the screen play of Mark Twain's immortal story of the American boy, Huckleberry Finn, which shows tonight and Tuesday at the State, with Mickey Rooney in the central role.

Sequel to "Tom Sawyer"

"The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," Mark Twain's classic of the Mississippi, sequel to "Tom Sawyer," and one of the beloved author's most widely read works, has been transferred with fidelity to the screen in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization. The screen play by Hugo Butler follows closely the story of the river boy of 1850 who seeks to aid a runaway slave to escape to freedom.

As "Huckleberry Finn," Mickey Rooney has his first solo starring role since the "Mickey McGuire" comedies. Up to now he has been co-starred or featured in the "Judge Hardy Family" stories, "Captains Courageous," "Stablemates," "Lord Jeff," "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" and others. The "King," comical mountebank and river wanderer, living by his wits, is played by Walter Connolly, fresh from a triumph in "Too Hot to Handle." William Frawley, veteran character actor, plays the "Duke," second of the river mountebanks.

Jim, the escaping slave, is enacted by Rex Ingram, noted Negro actor who is best remembered for his role of "De Lawd" in stage and screen presentation of "Green Pastures." Lynne Carver and Jo Ann Sayers are seen as the heiresses whom Huck saves from the plots of the mountebanks who seek to defraud them. In other supporting roles are Minor Watson as Captain Brandy, the kindhearted riverboat captain; Elizabeth Risdon as the Widow Douglass, Victor Kilian as "Pap" Finn and Clara Blandick as Miss Watson.

The Highlights

The river sequences were filmed on location on the Sacramento river, many scenes being made on spots the author once visited while he traveled from Calaveras to San Francisco when he wrote "The Jumping Frog." The company headquarters at Sacramento and Isleton, one of the oldest towns in California.

Dramatic highlights include the demand of Huck's father on the widow, the runaway, Huck's imprisonment and escape, the finding of the runaway, their return to learn of the murder charge, the escape from the mob, the dramatic return with the dying Huck, the means by which he foils the swindlers, and the mad race with the river steamer and rescue from the lynchers.

Mickey Rooney as he appears in "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" at the State theater tonight and Tuesday.

Comedy highlights include the "Shakespearean" performance of the two charlatans, their antics while posing as royalty, their efforts to keep alive their fraud with the heiresses, and their departure tarred and feathered from the village. Many comedy moments are provided by Huck's home life, his schemes to deceive the widow about school, and such homely moments which Twain wrote of so well.

This is exactly what happens to the woman who wears a Charis-designed foundation. These unique garments are the result of scientific study of the feminine figure. They are adjustable to the special needs of different figure types. They provide correct support. They recreate the lovely contours of youth. # Sales Of Fords And New Mercury Put Bargains On Used Car Market Here

GRATE COMPANY CONDUCTS SALE

Excellent Stock of Re-conditioned Cars Awaits Buyers

The new 1939 Ford V-8's and the Mercury, the latest addition to the always popular Ford line, have met with such a favorable response from the motoring public that, logically, the used car market here has been enhanced by an increasing number of salable models.

The Ford and Mercury have been "going to town," from the sales standpoint, and, as a result, dealers now are forced to step on it in order to reduce used car stocks.

As a result of steady sales, the E. L. Grate company and other Ford distributors have accumulated the finest stocks of used models in recent years.

More than 30 used cars and trucks have been placed on the floor at the Grate company garage, 5 Ellsworth ave., and they are scheduled to be sold out at the lowest prices in Grate history.

Not only will motorists who are in the field for used transportation have a wide variety of models from which to select, but they will also be assured, E. L. Grate points out, of getting a car that is mechanically equipped for the road.

The trade-in cars are taken into the service shop, completely inspected, worn parts replaced and the car given servicing from top to bottom before it is turned over to the sales department. As a result, the buyer is assured of dollar-for-dollar value.

Easy terms are available in every case, Grate's explains.

San Francisco Beats New York to Starting Gun with Exposition

EXPERIENCE IS VALUED QUALITY

Training and "Knowing" Go With Paris Cleaners' Service

It stands to reason that any man or woman without actual experience, in any given field of endeavor, is sure to be less efficient than those who have spent their lives in the actual doing of a given thing.

Perhaps this is why L. C. Price, manager of the Paris Cleaners on the Benton road, smiles when one of his drivers brings in some garment with the remark, "Mrs. Smith says, 'so and so nearly ruined my clothing the last time, I hope you can do it right.'"

As Mr. Price puts it, any "cleaner" can do it right, but there is the catch—the word "cleaner." Laws protect the public from all quick professional practice, or at least endeavor to, but in the dry cleaning business abuse may be unlimited.

There is no short cut to learning this work. Years of experience are required, plus study and hundreds of dollars invested in necessary equipment.

All this being true, isn't it good judgment to send your dry cleaning to a plant, right here in Salem, that has every qualification that makes for perfect work?

Ohioans In Washington

Highlights On Legislative Activities

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), smilingly non-committal on their personal aspirations, name each other as a logical Republican nominee for the presidency in 1940.

This was developed during questioning of the two senators, both mentioned as among those to be considered when the time comes to nominate a candidate.

Taft's election last November over Senator Buckley (D., Ohio), who was backed by the administration, put the Cincinnati name forward as a prospective choice for a place on the Republican ticket in 1940.

Some friends of the son of former President William Howard Taft suggest his selection to lead the ticket. Others believe he might be chosen as the vice presidential nominee.

The junior Buckeye senator does not choose to discuss his own plans. He was elected, he explained, to be senator for six years, and added there were too many things to think about now to consider what might happen two years hence.

Gov. John W. Bricker, Ohio Republican, also has been mentioned prominently as presidential timber.

New intimations that President Roosevelt preferred returning to private life after his second term has revived speculation on the possibility an Ohioan would contend or be considered for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940.

Senator Donahay (D., Ohio), three-time governor of his state, may be a possibility. He has friends guessing as to his future plans.

Recurring reports are that the senior senator will retire after his term expires two years from now. Donahay has said he wasn't interested in further political honors, but declared the matter of his future was something to be decided later. He gained national prominence as chairman of the committee investigating the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Representative Bender (R., Ohio) wants congress to settle the third term issue. The Cleveland said that the senate ought to adopt a resolution opposing three terms for any president.

"There is evidence," said Bender, "that President Roosevelt is testing sentiment to find out the nation's opinion on his candidacy in 1940."

"The senate should consider and pass a declaration which would serve notice on Mr. Roosevelt that he must not seek to smash precedent established by the father of our country."

"America has leaders, alert, strong and responsible, ready to take over the presidency. We need a resolution which would reaffirm our faith in the republic by condemning any departure from our presidential tradition."

Slain in Mystery

Mrs. Florence Ames

Mystery slaying, in which police say they were left without clues, ended in finding body of Mrs. Florence L. Ames, 50, in false attic of house next door to her home at Syracuse, N. Y. She had been missing since December.

$8,000,000 Widow

Mrs. Annie Laurine Dodge

In her first picture since she was awarded $8,000,000 from the estate of her husband, Daniel G. Dodge, the automobile heir, Mrs. Annie Laurine Dodge appears startled by the camera, in this photo from Detroit. Dodge was drowned while honeymooning last summer with his bride, a former telephone operator at Gore Bay, Ont.

A number of members expressed gratification over President Roosevelt's message recommending early action on measures to rid the country's streams of pollution. The President recommended a program not unlike the Barkley-Vinson bill of last year.

That bill was vetoed by the President on the ground it would permit expenditure of funds without approval of the budget bureau. He did not object to other phases of the legislation which would establish in the public health service a new division to cooperate with states, local governments and industry in an anti-pollution program.

Ohio now has two representatives on the house flood control committee. Representative Claypool was elected a member this session.

Representative Secrest is the other. Representative Polk is negotiating with army engineers in an effort to obtain funds for completion of plans for a $6,000,000 flood wall at Portsmouth. The project was authorized by the last congress but it is improbable the engineers can use money on hand for actual construction. This probably will be obtained when this year's war department appropriation is made.

Polk said, however, that preparations for construction could be put underway if funds were allotted for development of plans. Engineers indicated, Polk said, that this would be done.

Judge Arthur D. Wood of the federal parole board recalls that the Ohio penitentiary fire of 1930, in which 320 convicts perished, spurred congress to pass a bill to revise the federal prison program.

The measure, among other things, established the parole board with Wood as the first member. He's from Minnesota.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general in the Hoover cabinet, sponsored the bill. Wood recalled. She talked with influential members of congress and finally got the measure introduced. Her efforts to get action on it brought only indulgent smiles from house members until the prison tragedy in Columbus.

The measure was put before the house almost immediately after the fire and prompt passage followed.

NEW TIRE ADDS TRAFFIC SAFETY

Seiberling Is Non-Skid, Strong and Stands Punishment

"It's a far cry from the old duster days of the solid tire to the present," says Don Smith of the Smith garage, local Seiberling tire dealer, at Third st. and Vine ave. "Way back when the automobile was a curiosity rather than a necessity, it was not uncommon to have to change tires every 1,000 miles. If a tire lasted as long as 5,000 miles, it was indeed a rarity and a cause for celebration," he adds.

But times have changed. Now tires wear as high as 40,000 miles despite the wear and tear from speeds that were undreamed of 20 years ago and despite quick stopping, that would have torn the first tires apart.

"The latest contribution to the science of tire construction and design," according to Mr. Smith, "is the revolutionary Seiberling safety tire, which has recently been announced."

"Three features make it different from any other tire on the road to-

Margaret Neal

Miss Margaret Neal, 23, only woman member of the New Mexico House of Representatives, is sponsor of a law which would compel every registered voter in the state to cast a ballot on election day or pay a fine of from $5 to $25.

"The patented Seiberling principle of heat-venting disperses dangerous internally generated heat, one of the chief causes of blow-outs. Vents into the shoulders of the tire force out destructive heat and pump in fresh, cool air. The new Seiberling Saf-Flex cord, used so successfully in Seiberling truck tires, makes the tire stronger and enables it to stand terrific punishment."

This beautiful, new streamlined tire, made in both white and black sidewalls, may be seen at Smith's garage.

HYPOLIDS NEED SPECIAL SERVICE

Tyson Station, W. State and Benton Rd., Properly Equipped

Hypoid differential gears are said by automotive engineers to be the outstanding developments in recent automobile models. They list three advantages—(1) greater strength, necessitated by increased power and higher speed of modern cars, (2) quieter axle operation, (3) they permit building cars with lower bodies.

But, while they hold these advantages over the old type gear, they also require special attention from the standpoint of servicing, such as special lubricants applied in the proper method.

In order to properly service cars with the new gears, and many of the new machines have them, the Freedom service station at W. State st. and the Benton rd., operated by Freeman Tyson, has been provided with complete information regarding the needs of every make of car with differentials.

Information listing all makes of automobiles and the proper method of servicing them have been received by the station and have been carefully studied by the station attendants. The information provided by the Freedom company, is approved by the manufacturers whose cars are listed.

Hypoid gears require a special grade of lubricant and under no condition should anything but the proper lubricant be put in the differential housing. The housings should be drained, flushed and refilled every five or six thousand miles, or twice a year, whichever occurs first.

QUAKERS TO FINISH CAGE SCHEDULE THIS WEEK

BROWNMEN FACE BOARDMAN FIVE TUESDAY NIGHT

Quakers Return to Win Column by Topping Wellsville, 34-22

Back in the victory column for the first time since conquering Massillon three weeks ago, Coach Herb Brown's Salem High school cagers prepared today to wind up their regular schedule in two games this week.

The Quakers will face Boardman High Trojans at Boardman tomorrow night and Struthers' Big Red on the local floor Friday night in the final games of their 1938-39 schedule.

Following this week's games, the Quakers will receive a short rest before entering the annual Youngstown sectional tournament. Drawings for the tournament are to be made tonight at Youngstown East High school.

Coach Brown's charges returned to the win column last Saturday night with an easy 34 to 22 victory over Wellsville High's Tigers, gained on the spacious new Beacom Memorial court in Wellsville.

Take Quick Lead

Finding the new Wellsville gym to their liking, the Quakers roared away to an eight-point lead in the first quarter and remained out in front throughout the second, third and fourth quarters.

Brown's charges displayed uncanny accuracy on their set shots in the first quarter to pile up an eight-point lead, 12 to 4. Wellsville employed a zone defense against the Quakers at the start of the contest but quickly switched to man-to-man when the Red and Black lads began hitting the hoop from beyond the foul line.

The Salem attack bogged down somewhat in the second period as Brown sent his second stringers into action, but Wellsville could do no better than cut the Quakers advantage from eight to six points. At halftime the Quakers led, 16 to 10.

The Salem regulars returned to action in the third period, and duplicated their first quarter performance, by outscoring Wellsville eight points. The score at the end of the third frame was 29 to 15.

Brown juggled his lineup again in the last period to give the second stringers additional action and as a result, Wellsville led the fourth quarter scoring seven points to five.

Eighth Victory

The victory was the eighth the Quakers have gained in 14 games to date and their third over a Columbiana county opponent. Their previous county victories have been over Lisbon and East Palestine.

Bill Schaeffer carried off individual honors in the one-sided contest, connecting for four field goals and two free throws for 10 points. Glen McLaughlin netted three field goals and one free throw to trail Schaeffer in scoring with seven points.

The Quaker reserves, who fell before East Liverpool and the Salem Hi-Y in successive games, also climbed back into the victory column by trouncing Wellsville reserves, 27 to 15, in the preliminary game.

The Salem subs enjoyed easy sledding throughout the contest. Mike Thomas led the scoring with eight points.

CITY BOWLING TOURNEY ENDS; LIST WINNERS

One Change Made In Singles Event During Final Session

New champions in the doubles and singles events of the City Handicap Tourney tournament were crowned Saturday afternoon, following the close of the fourth annual tournament at the Masonic temple alleys.

Only one change in the list of doubles and singles prize winners was made during the final tournament session Saturday. This moved Merv Thomas into eighth place in the singles on a 532 score.

Thomas had an actual pin count of 566, featuring a 234 single game. Johnny Meier was awarded the championship of the singles for the 661 score he rolled last Monday night, while Paul Covert and Bill Finley were declared doubles champions for their 1257 mark made Tuesday night.

Tom Reese, whose all-around performance was the outstanding feature of the tournament, captured first place in the two all-events classes, with and without handicap. Reese had a 1914 count with his handicap and 1824 without his handicap.

W. H. Juergens, secretary of the Salem Bowling association which sponsors the tournament, announced today that official results of the tournament will be posted tomorrow at the Masonic and Grate Recreation alleys. Prize checks will be mailed March 1.

Juergens revealed that, due to an error in tabulating scores, the Hutter Coals had been advanced from eighth to seventh place in the five-man prize list. The Coals gained 21 pins when it was discovered that Rudy Bodendorfer's handicap had been figured wrongly.

Unofficial results of singles and doubles events and scores of Saturday's final tournament session follow:

QUICK VICTORY SOUGHT IN AIR

Mass Bombing Is Seen As Characteristic of
"Next War"

to the victories of the Japanese and Generalissimo Franco to weigh accurately the usefulness of airplanes.

Technical Change

The greatest technical change in the "next war" from the last one
will stem from the building up of huge air fleets, but just what it will mean in the balances of defeat or
victory remains to be determined.

The Martin, Douglas and Lockheed medium-weight bombers which
the French and British are purchasing are said to compare favorably with similar planes with which the German and Italian air
fleets are equipped, both in speed
and carrying capacity.

The Curtiss pursuits ordered by the French, while they are less
speedy than the best of the German pursuits, are far better than the Boeing (American) type
"chatos" which gave a very good
account of themselves for the Loyalists against Italian and German aviation in Spain.

Crews Take Food to Snowbound Village

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 20.—
New Mexico State Highway crews,
after breaking through 22 miles of
snow-clogged mountain roads yesterday to get needed food to Hickman, N. M., continued north today
along the western slope of the Continental Divide to open the road to another snowbound village, Adams
Diggins, about 18 miles northwest of Hickman.

State Police Captain Ed Jackson,
who headed the rescue party to Hickman, said he did not think Adams Diggins was badly in need of food.

TWO ALLIANCES DRAW INTEREST

Anti-Comintern Pact
Are Explained

the critical days when their intervention threatened to precipitate
a general European conflict.

The alliance was further cement-
ed when Mussolini visited Berlin
in September, 1937, and was accorded a reception fit for a dozen
kings. In May of last year Hitler returned the visit and the Duce
threw a party which has had few equals in splendor in recorded history.

Co-operate in Various Crises

The two have backed each other in numerous crises. Mussolini, for example, supported Hitler morally when the latter staged his Austrian and Czechoslovak coups. The fu-er recently reciprocated by declaring that "there is no doubt that a
war against the Italy of today,
launched for no matter what motives, will call Germany to the side
of her friend."

Now for the anti-Comintern pact.
The Comintern is the Communist International, which is the organization of the Communist party of all nations.

Communism is, of course, Hitler's
pet hate, just as it was the chal-
enge which inspired Mussolini to found Fascism to combat it. In 1936 Hitler conceived the idea of getting other nations to join in an anti-Comintern pact, the purpose
of which would be to fight Communism in every way possible.

The pact came into being on Nov. 25,
1936, when it was signed by Japan
and Germany—Nippon also being an implacable foe of Communism.
The pact states that the aim of the Communist Internationale (the Comintern) is to disintegrate all existing states by every means at its command. The Comintern is described as a threat to world peace.
Germany and Japan agree to work
together both at home and abroad
against it.

Would Furnish Arms

The contracting parties further
agreed that Germany would keep a large garrison in East Prussia, and that Japan would maintain an agreed number of troops in Man-choukuo. Under certain conditions
Germany would furnish arms to Nippon.

Observers generally have believed that under this pact there
likely would be military cooperation between Germany and Japan
if either became involved in war
with Russia.

The Rome-Berlin axis was
brought into the pact in a big way
on Nov. 6, 1937, when Mussolini
joined. Hungary is the latest country that has agreed to subscribe.

River Fires Bring Federal Officers

PORTSMOUTH, O., Feb. 20.—
Separate fires, which destroyed one Ohio river boat and damaged another, brought an investigation by federal inspectors today of the more costly blaze.

The 139-ton steamboat, Calvin B.
Beach, owned by Oscar F. Shearer
and Sons of Winchester, Ky., burned and sank yesterday near Letart, W. Va. A crew of 10 saved two of four barges by cutting them loose.

The wooden-hulled craft, valued
at $25,000, was reported partially insured and inspectors began an investigation. It operated out of Point Pleasant, W. Va.

A wharboast owned by the Greene Line Steamers, Inc., was saved from total loss by city firemen here. Capt. W. T. Kimble said
the boat contained little cargo but declined to estimate the damage.

POLICE WAR ON ROBBERY GANGS

Four Alliance Youths In Group Nabbed Over
Weekend

Zalick's wife into custody also, but
she refused to talk when questioned.

The defendant, who, Chief Stof-
fer said, had served time in Western penitentiary at Pittsburgh on a shooting charge, has been living
north of here. He formerly was employed at the Republic Steel
plant in Youngstown.

The Alliance quartet was nabbed
by Patrolman George Reash later
Saturday night, when the watch-
man at the Salem Engineering Co.
office notified police that some boys
were "going through" a car parked near a S. Broadway cafe.

The youths had driven to Salem
in a machine owned by James Hen-
nacy of Alliance, who, police said,
was a brother-in-law of George
Schell, one of the defendants.

Found in their car were some tools and gauze bandages. The latter had been taken from the parked car before Patrolman Reash
arrived.

Question Youths Further

Police intended to question the youths and Zalick further today in an effort to solve additional cases
of petty thievery here. Chief Stoffer said Russell Bagley and James Huff were wards of the Stark county probate court. He said Schell had served time in the Mansfield reformatory on an armed robbery
charge and that he was now on parole.

James Barris, the sixth man held,
was picked up after he had stolen
an alarm clock at the Broadway
